++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Breezy with sunny intervals and scattered showers.

Today:
Breezy with a mix of cloud and sunny intervals, with the best of the sunshine in the far south and also central and northern Scotland. There will also be showers, most of which will be in central and northwestern areas.

Tonight:
A few light showers in west, else clear spells allowing a frost in the northeast and a few fog patches in the south-east. Cloud and rain into far north-west later.

Saturday:
Strengthening winds, cloud and outbreaks of rain spreading to the north and west, whilst other areas have a good deal of cloud, isolated light showers and a few sunny intervals.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Showery rain Sunday, then sunshine and showers Monday, locally heavy, perhaps thundery. Rain moving from the west on Tuesday. Windy at times. Temperatures near normal, becoming milder by Tuesday.
